Extra-special Volunteers!

Putting the May newsletter together was quite an adventure! With a great deal of activity going on throughout the church, we assembled the newsletter in the Edith Wight room, a bit of a small space for an activity that requires some room to maneuver. Despite the lack of space, we had a good time and got the job done. Thank you to our volunteers Jean McGuire, Marilyn Rodee, Joyce Bell, Bill and Karen Parker, Janet Stitt, and Wanda Renick. Great job!

Welcome!

Welcome to the newest members of our church, Michelle Roach and Gordy Theisen. Best wishes as they plan their August wedding.

The Pastor's Report

I had all kinds of ideas of what to write about this month; mostly frilly. You know, gardening, school's out, perhaps fishing, or even length of day. Then draw some quaint conclusions and call it good. Apparently not.

This month I'd like to talk about hard times. Not the every day, run of the mill stuff; I'm talkin' HARD TIMES. Those things which find you making deals with God as you pray, and searching your soul asking, "Why me?" or, "Why the ones I love?"

So you say, "Come on Rev. Mike, lighten up. It is darn near summer. Put the cross down for one month." Well, I'd like to, but it just so happens that the past few weeks have found me witnessing a lot of folks I care about toting crosses far heavier than any I'd like to bear (maybe more than I could bear).

One of the most valuable things ministry teaches, is that everyone, everyone gets their share (or more than their share) of hard times at some point or another in their lives. It is the most common denominator of the human condition. Funny, though, how people seem to forget this on a day to day basis (denial?).

When you embrace such reality as the fact it is, you begin to change the way you think about and act in the world. It doesn't happen over night, to be sure, but eventually you find yourself treading a little bit lighter through life, and looking over your shoulder a little be more.

Eventually you come to possess something which will look an awful lot like stoicism, or even detachment. But I think a better description is a sense of calm. Not that you have it all together in some kind of Zen sense, you just realize that freaking out really doesn't help any. Better just to gird yourself, and move through it with as much grace as you can muster (and pray for more, because you never can have enough grace; besides, no one knows what tomorrow might bring).

Now hear me when I say this, I'm not showing myself to be a "glass is half empty" guy. But I am a realist. And hard times really happen to everyone, even those we love.

So, what do we do? Well, being the resident preacher, I'd advise taking a gander at the Bible sooner rather than later (maximizes the investment). Check out the ever pragmatic Apostle Paul in Romans 5:1-5; the bottom line absoluteness of the Psalmist in Psalm 46:1; Philippians 4:6-7 for some practical direction (my mother's favorite); the oldie but goodie 23rd Psalm (note the part where we are "made to lie down by the still water"); or hold on to a promise with Revelation 21:3-4.

Any of that help? Perhaps in time. Hold onto hope in your heart. Hope is what gives power to love and possibility to peace.

If you have been through your own hard times, you know two things at the very least. First, they are in fact hard. It hurts, a lot. There will be tears and anguish and pain and grief and worry and no small amount of fear. You'll feel as if you aren't going to make it. These feelings and experiences are real; honor them. Let them take up the room or make the changes in your life they must. Because this experience is going to change you. That is the second thing hard times give you: a new you. But always remember that you will have the most to say about the new you which emerges from all this. So choose wisely.

I feel as if I've accomplished so little in these words, that there is so much more to say or should be said. But more often than not, hard times renders all of one's words inane and/or inappropriate. So I'll leave you with just these few:

I love you, I'm praying for you and I will walk with you.

- Rev. Mike

"We have this hope, a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters the inner shrine behind the curtain." - Hebrews 6:19

Ghosts From The Past

by Tyke Miller

I hope you will not mind if I use a little personal Ghost Memories this month. Thirty-seven years ago this coming July, Jack and I were in the North Country looking at property to perhaps buy a little land. Five acres maybe. We were camping on a farm camp ground outside of Canton. By Saturday we knew we wanted the farm we now own.

There was paper work, etc. to be done so we had to stay over the weekend. We had seen a beautiful church on the park which was Presbyterian so we went there Sunday morning. There was a note on the door directing us to the Methodist Church.

Two ministers were listed in the program but did not indicate which one was there that day. Was it Rev. Wolcott, who turned out to be our relative, or Rev. Stone? We found out after the service it was Rev. Stone that day. After chatting with him he offered to walk with us to show us the Presbyterian church. I am fairly sure he like the idea of getting two new confirmed members. Actually, of course it would be five.

When he opened a set of double doors we were overwhelmed at the beautiful sanctuary before us. Having come from a Revolutionary War church painted all white, we were stunned.

We were reminded of the day before when we first saw the upper hay floor of our barn. The building is not built tight, I guess so there is air circulating to keep the hay dry. There Jack and I stood, arms around each other feeling God's presence in this humble barn sanctuary.

Jack and I have always known we made the right choices in our farm and especially in our church.

These last weeks have shown me and our family how very loving and caring our church family is. I will not try to name everyone who helped us in some way. I know it was inconvenient to have the service and luncheon during Rummage Sale week but I bet Jack enjoyed every minute of it because he so loved the two weeks a year during the sales.

Special thanks to Rev. Mike for being with us so many hours at the hospital. Your prayers and hugs will be with us forever. We thank God for our Church Family and for all the love and prayers.

With much love from your Sisters and Brothers in Christ,
Tyke and the whole Miller family.
